Megan Abel is a writer who channels raw emotion into music. Sonically, she intertwines singer- songwriter roots with modern synths and samples, resulting in the hybrid outcome of her current creations. At fourteen Megan started playing guitar which naturally matured into writing and sharing her original music at a young age. In 2018 Megan enrolled in the Contemporary Music and Technology program at Selkirk College which was a stepping stone that brought evolution to her musicality and musicianship. Experimenting with her own productions opened up a freedom in exploration that allowed her to create the full vision of her music. Megan graduated with a Directed Studies Diploma in April 2020, and is now applying the skill set she developed through production based studies to complete her first self- produced EP. Depending on world health and circumstances, Megan hopes to tour her EP throughout BC by the end of 2022.
